Action projects that spread an environmental message through performance and art

Quality for Life

greater WELLINGTON
THE REGIONAL COUNCIL

Environment

This booklet offers practical advice on action projects that spread an environmental message.

The projects described here can help your class communicate ideas about environmental responsibility in ways that are effective and fun. The forms of communication covered are:

- performance (including role playing and hot seating)
- radio infomercials
- art works
- posters and pamphlets
- reporting
- creating a web site
- show casing

Environmental projects are excellent teaching tools that can enhance learning across the curriculum. More information about curriculum integration can be found at the end of this booklet.

The Greater Wellington Action Crew can help you undertake action projects designed to spread an environmental message.

This booklet is one of a series for teachers to help students do practical and effective action projects as part of Take Action for Water.

Teachers can use the action projects described in the series to tailor Take Action to the school's environmental interests and circumstances. This series can also be used to support long term environmental education in schools.
